New 'Death Ray' Helps Study Of Brain Diseases

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — "Death ray" killings of 10 monkeys may have paved the way for new advances in the study of diseases of the human brain.

The killer device—an instrument giving off a certain type of ultra-high frequency radio wave—now looks like a good bet for an improved tool to study in animals certain conditions involved in human brain maladies.

That's the word from Dr. Pearce Bailey of the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness. Bailey told about the monkey experiments in a conference of scientists released Friday. He expanded on the experiments in an interview.

Bailey said that although there is practically no hazard to humans from ordinary radio and radar, the monkey experiments point to a possible way of testing under what particular conditions ordinary radio and radar could become hazardous.

Regarding possibilities of using the technique in brain-disease research, Bailey gave this outline:

There was no evidence from the experiments that the physiological changes produced in the monkeys' brains were due to heat from the radio waves.

"So," he said, "it is theorized that the effects produced were caused by 'molecular disturbances' in the brain cells produced by the radiation itself, rather than its heat."

"Maybe," he said, "they (the brain cells) resonate with the electromagnetic radiation coming in—but at present, that is only theory."

But he said the evidence so far from the tests is that radio waves can alter the biological activity of the brain stem, a vital area of the brain in a way that may be reversible, that is, certain certain conditions of the effects produced may ultimately disappear.

The radio frequency used was a megacycle. Radio experts said this is within the frequencies used in radio communication between planes, and is also used in some types of specialized television and radar. Commercial radio and television broadcasts are in the frequency band ranging from six-tenths of a megacycle to about 100 megacycles.

St. Augustine Keeps Dignity of a 4-Centuries-Old City

AMERICA'S OLDEST CITY is a delightful vacation gift to every member of the family. St. Augustine's highlights, the sturdy fortress of Castillo de San Marcos, the four-century-old House of Light, the Museum of Hobbies, The Magic Circle, south leads to historic Fort Matanzas, Marineland's oceanarium, and Daytona, famed for its beach speedway and band shell; then east to DeLand, home of Stetson University, and north along St. Johns River to busy, bustling Jacksonville, home of the Gator Bowl, one of the world's largest cigar factories and the Children's Museum.

Editor's Note: This is the 21st in a series of suggested highway tour maps which the Hope Star publishes weekly. The series will cover the South and Southwest during the winter and the Northern sections in the spring. This is excellent material to cut out and paste up in a scrapbook for future reference when planning your vacation trip.

By EDWARD COLLIER
St. Augustine has kept its dignity, charm and beauty over four centuries—despite assaults by English invaders, pirates, marauding Indians, America's turn-of-the-century social elite, and a rash of privately promoted "tourist attractions."

Today, America's oldest city still continues to sit serenely in the Florida sun, a delightful and fair-priced vacation treat for every member of the family.

The old Plaza, on the waterfront, overlooking bright blue Matanzas Bay, is a picture postcard place to start a Magic Circle tour of this city of living history. The stories of King Arthur offer no more colorful chapters of adventure, heroism and romance.

Between the sea wall and the Plaza stands a statue of Ponce de Leon, who landed here just before Easter, in 1513 and named the Florida. Romance, legend, would have you believe that this Spanish knight, who had arrived with Columbus on his second voyage, had equipped his own expedition and sailed here from the West Indies to look for the Fountain of Youth. Others say it was in search of gold. Five days after claiming the "Continent of Florida" as far north as Labrador for the Spanish crown, Ponce de Leon sailed away.

Fifty years after Ponce de Leon's visit, the nation's first permanent settlement was established here. The Plaza and streets were laid out from plans furnished by the King.

The Plaza continues to be the focal point of the community. Here visitors can rest and relax on the tree-shaded benches, or under the protection of the flower-bordered old Slave Market, now a small open air pavilion.

Across the street is the recently beautiful Cathedral of St. Augustine. The present structure was completed in 1797, and parish records date back to 1594. Back of the Plaza is the home of the first Spanish governor of the colony, built in the early 1600's, which now has been restored and is the U.S. Postoffice. Everything is just as it was; the unbelievably thick walls and the graceful architectural lines will never grow old.

One delightful way to see the compact old part of the city is via one of the horse-drawn carriages that are lined up in colorful array alongside the sea wall. Our first stop was at the oldest house in the United States.

Living Symbol
Preserved by the St. Augustine Historical Society, the Oldest House is a symbol of the way of daily life under the flags of Spain, Britain and the United States. Originally started as a small one-story dwelling in the early 1600's, the 14 families that once lived here changed and enlarged it to suit their needs and tastes. Its very fabric seems to tell the colorful story of its past; from the moment you enter there is a feeling of being in a living museum.

The First Christian Church will bring the Sunday afternoon service at the Hope Nursing Home. The choir and members will sing, and Mr. Wm. E. Harris will speak.

Special Council Election Banned

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Attorney ruled that a special election to fill a vacancy on the Little Rock city council was illegal. The attorney, General Bruce Bennett, said that if other council members can't agree on an appointment, Bennett's opinion went to Mayor E. L. Hatchaway of St. Louis Springs.

Hatchaway had written that a vacancy arose on the St. Louis Springs city council when one councilman left the city. He said the rest of the council was deadlocked in trying to name a successor and asked if he, as mayor, could call an election to resolve the issue.

The attorney general said the only recourse would be to take another vote on the matter.

Chinese List 2,000 Killed and Missing

By JOHN RODERICK
TOKYO (AP) — The Chinese Communist command in Tibet claimed today it had wiped out the bulk of the Tibetan rebellion and killed, wounded or taken prisoner nearly 2,000 rebels.

The army said that the only remaining opposition was from a few remnant bands who have fled to remote mountainous areas.

"With the active support of the Tibetan people in those localities," the announcement said, "the troops are continuing to hunt out and mop up the scattered remnants. They will be wiped out in the near future."

The army report, broadcast by the Communist New China News Agency, said that in more than 100 days of fighting the Red troops had captured a vast number of villages, including "all the key points in the border area of the Loka area and in the northern ranges of the Himalaya Mountains."

The Loka area is the main rebel base southeast of Lhasa, the capital. It is Tibet's border area with India and Bhutan.

The Chinese Communists fired an angry barrage of criticism at the Indian government for releasing the Dalai Lama's statement that he left Tibet voluntarily.

The charges were the most serious yet in a rapidly mounting campaign to silence Indian criticism of Communist Chinese policy in Tibet.

The official, Peking People's Daily said "the very act of issuing such a statement, containing wild talk about so-called 'independence for Tibet' and the unbridled attacks on China, show that certain influential figures in India wrongly take the view that China is weak and timid and now is the time to freely exert 'pressure' on China."

At almost the moment the Dalai Lama was saying he fled to India of his own free will, Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai was categorically declaring that he had been abducted.

Nehru left New Delhi today for Mussoorie, where the Dalai Lama has settled after his flight to India.

The two leaders are scheduled to meet Friday. The meeting may prove to be an acid test of Chinese-Indian relations and may help shape the future course of the Tibetan rebellion.

Youth Finally Made Good His Threat

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Ernest Ruffo Jr., 18, often threatened to kill himself when he and his girl friend argued.

Ruffo wanted to take the girl, Janice Rieck, 15, to a parade today. Miss Rieck said she was going with a girl friend.

The youth threatened again to kill himself. He tied a hangman's noose in a length of rope while the girl watched.

He left a suicide note in the Rieck living room, said Detective Frank Castillon.

His body was found Thursday night hanging from a rafter in the tool shed at the Rieck home.

"I thought he was just trying to scare me," sobbed Janice.

Woman Charged in Sister's Slaying

LIVINGSTON III. (AP) — A 50-year-old woman who for nine years nursed her elderly parents and a mentally retarded sister was held in jail today charged with the slaying of the sister.

A charge of murder was placed against Miss Anna Colman by State's Atty. Richard Mudge, who said she admitted choking her sister, Susan, 38, because she would not stop screaming.

Short Sheriff George Musso of Madison County said Susan was mentally retarded.

Anna lived alone in a small frame house adjoining the one occupied by her parents and the sister. But police said Susan much of her time caring for the three. Her mother, Anna, is confined to a wheelchair, and her father, Steve, is bedridden.

Senate Action Delayed On Labor Bill

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — A bitter row over a compromise for the McClellan "bill of rights" amendment has delayed final Senate action on the Kennedy labor regulation bill.

Another attempt will be made today to pass the bill. Plans of the leadership on both sides to finish with the measure Friday night evaporated in a big verbal explosion when a substitute for the bill of rights proposal was called up.

The future even included a personal attack on Majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) with some senators charging he was trying to force them to vote on a substitute they had not read.

Johnson then suddenly adjourned the Senate until today, despite pleas of some of his colleagues that it be adjourned until Monday.

It appeared the substitute was a revised version of the original McClellan amendment, would be adopted when the dust settled in the Senate today.

Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) indicated to newsmen he might well go along with the substitute. He said he was "fully consulted" on it, and that it would meet objections of some of his fellow Southerners to his original proposal.

But, there was a question as to whether final passage of the bill could come today. Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) told a reporter he was strongly against the substitute as too weak, and that he might "cut up 30 amendments now to keep this thing going." He has more than that number piled up.

The Senate met 13 hours Friday and seemed to have settled all the major floor fights except for rewriting the bill of rights amendment.

Huddles went on all day among interested senators on the floor and in the cloakrooms to try to agree on the substitute. It was not agreed upon until late in the evening, and then was offered by Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif.), Republican whip.

Kuchel had five Democrats and three other Republicans as cosponsors. This in itself indicated the substitute would be adopted since all four of the Republicans voted for the original, which was put into the bill Wednesday by a 47-46 vote.

But as soon as Kuchel presented the new version, Republicans who favored the original objected loudly.

And Sen. Spessard Holland (D-La.) declared it was outrageous of Johnson to expect senators to vote on this when copies of the substitute were not even available.

Officers Seek Way to Calm Down a Lion

MEMPHIS (AP) — Law enforcement officials have hit the lion books here to see what, if anything, can be done about a lion mauling on citizens.

So far they've found that there are no criminal statutes to cover the lion's conduct although civil action is another thing.

Their rush to the law books came after 2-year-old Johnny Cox was attacked Wednesday by a 120-pound pet lion, stalked out in a yard next door to the youngster's house. Johnny, now in fair condition, was clawed and bitten when he got too close to the young lion.

Atty. Gen. Phil Canale said he hasn't found anything in the statutes to support criminal action against the lion or its owner. Safe and city laws, he said, make no mention of lions—only domestic animals.

Even policemen joined the trek to the law books. And on veteran detective revealed the lengths to which they were taking their research.

"We even considered possible depredation of the lion as an undesirable alien," he said. "Then we found out the animal was born in this country."

Gas Firm Plans More Production

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Western Gas Co. today told its stockholders that the company's directors have approved a capital additions outlay of $1,300,000 for this year.

Pipeline expenditures are expected to total about $300,000 and some $240,000 will be spent for distribution facilities.

The firm also announced a gas storage project in the Gunter wells near Boone County. Two wells have been drilled southwest of Harrison. The project is aimed at supplementing the natural gas supply to the Harrison-Berryville-Fayetteville area.

HOSTAGE — Escaped convict William D. Werner, holds a knife to the throat of Mrs. Louise E. Gachwend after he and another prisoner escaped from the San Quentin, Calif., prison and was cornered on a fishing pier near the prison. The two convicts held Mrs. Gachwend and a companion hostage during a day-long ordeal and threatened to kill Mrs. Gachwend if officers came close. The convicts later surrendered. — NEA-Telephone

Low Day U. S. A. Should Give Pause for Some Timely Study

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Many different laws today exist for me and you. To take a look at them we need to look at our past, our future. There's the law of diminishing returns.

In that old field of trade even in a jungle with primitive laws are made.

Self-preservation is natural. On any land or sea, and Newton showed us years ago The law of gravity.

In laws are listed and outlaws, too, And one called "supply and demand."

But seriously, we speak right now In terms of the Law of the Land.

The greatest heritage of American citizenship is a system of government under laws of the people, by the people and for the people. Faith in the rule of those laws is one of the best safeguards we can have in maintaining our human freedom and dignity.

John C. Cornwell, President of The American Heritage Foundation, has reminded the people in this great land of ours that no person in the United States is so big that he is above the law and none so insignificant that he cannot look to the law for protection.

No wonder that respect for law and order is the cornerstone of our American heritage!

Law enforcement officials are more conscious of the rights and responsibilities, which are an integral part of the privileges we enjoy at the hands of the law, than are many other citizens.

Therefore, the statement of J. Edgar Hoover, F. B. I. Director, is not surprising.

In reference to freedom of law and the early settlers of this country he said, "These courageous people came to our shores, determined that the candle of liberty was based on this respect for the law, not on the whimsical desires of men."

By proclamation, the observance known as Law Day U. S. A. will take place next Friday, May 1, 1959. In countries under communist rule the same date has been a time for great demonstrations of military force.

For that reason no better time could be chosen to call attention to the responsibility of lawyers and law-minded laymen to supplant the law of force with the force of law.

Richmond Man to Head Presbyterians

ATLANTA (AP) — A professor of church history, the Rev. Ernest T. Thompson of Richmond, Va., is the new head of the Presbyterian Church U.S. (South).

The 65-year-old native of Texarkana, Tex., was elected Thursday night as moderator of the court of the church, the 99th General Assembly, to succeed Philip Howerston of Charlotte, N.C.

The new leader of the denomination's 870,000 members in 19 states and the District of Columbia has taught at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond since 1925.

Nomination of Mrs. Luce to Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The newly appointed U.S. ambassador to Brazil, Mrs. Luce, is scheduled to go to the Senate next Monday.

The Senate Foreign Relations committee recommended approval of the nomination Thursday. The vote was 16-1.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) who used the opposition vote, said he will continue his fight against the nomination on the Senate floor.

Morse opposes Mrs. Luce because of remarks she made about Franklin D. Roosevelt in the 1944 presidential campaign. He also claims she intervened in Italian elections while she was ambassador to Rome.

Radio Waves Can Be Fatal to Monkeys

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists have discovered that some radio waves under certain conditions can be fatal to monkeys.

This "remarkable phenomenon," as he called it, was reported by Dr. Pearce Bailey, director of the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness, in testimony before the House Appropriations Committee.

He said he was not sure of the significance and implications but they could be far-reaching.

"We feel certain that radio and radar is not dangerous," Bailey said. "We have had mysterious airplane accidents, on the other hand, it was always assumed that the ordinary frequencies these things could not happen, but it appears here that if you use a certain frequency and have the head in a certain critical position, it can happen."

Bailey's testimony was given some time ago behind closed doors but has just been released. The transcript did not say what frequency was used and Bailey could not be reached today.

In his testimony, Bailey related that the discovery developed from experiments as to the effect of electromagnetic waves on a monkey's brain activity.

A monkey fastened in a cage was the subject. A radio antenna was aimed at the monkey's head but no part of the experimental apparatus touched the animal.

In a matter of about five minutes, Bailey said, the monkey unexpectedly and suddenly died. About 20 other monkeys were similarly tested but the exposure was halted in the cases of about half of them before they died. Most of the survivors recovered completely, although they originally showed signs of brain damage.

The waves that killed the monkey, Bailey said, emanated from a radio antenna pointing toward the monkey's head and in line with his brain stem, the central and vital part of the brain. The antenna was not even near his scalp.

Allies Agree On Strategy With Soviet Union

By JOHN A. SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Western Allies are reported 80 per cent agreed on what their proposals and strategy should be when they meet with the Soviet Union in two weeks to discuss Berlin and Germany's future.

Diplomats are confident, however, the remaining 20 per cent of differences will be resolved and a united negotiating front formed at a Western Bloc three-meeting beginning in Paris Wednesday.

A team of American, British, French and West German officials, however, have failed to agree on diverging views, particularly on European security matters, at a meeting which ended in London Thursday.

The main conflict appears to lie in Britain's continued insistence on proposing some kind of central European arms control plan, not necessarily linked to progress in achieving German reunification.

The British are understood to be continuing to press for Western agreement on a plan to ask the Soviet Union to accept a ceiling on troops and weapons in a small area covering both parts of East and West Germany.

American, West German and French authorities are reported insisting that any such plan be tied to step-by-step progress in merging the Western and Communist zones of Germany into a single democratic nation.

Diplomats representing the four allies, however, appear to have agreed on these main points:

1. Any new arrangements governing the Allied positions in West Berlin must be negotiated only with the understanding that arrangements in no way alter the Allies' existing legal right to be there. The British are reported to have accepted this view. But the new international status would be no better than the one now existing which is based on their wartime right of conquest.
2. No detailed draft peace treaty will be offered the Soviets. State Department officials had proposed this but the idea has been discarded in favor of proposing a set of about a dozen principles which would be later translated into a detailed treaty.

Surgery on Victim of Berserk Man

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — A critically wounded assailant, psychiatrist may undergo delicate brain surgery if he can survive the initial shock of a bullet fired into his brain Thursday night by a man who killed himself seconds later.

Doctors at Miami Valley Hospital in Dayton were awaiting developments before attempting to remove the bullet from the head of Kermit Thomas, 31.

Investigators still were trying to fit together a motive for the killing. The disclosure came as the man Oxford, 61.

The authorities hope further questioning of a 48-year-old widow, held at a hospital by Oxford prior to the shooting, can supply the missing answers.

The woman, Iva Williams, was recovering from shock at her Xenia home after living through several terrifying minutes at the nearby Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Home Thursday.

The state-operated home, an orphanage for children of disabled or deceased veterans, was the scene of the unexplained shooting. Oxford, a food service worker there, apparently hid in a room of the main building until Williams reported to work as a cafeteria supervisor. When she entered the room, patrolmen said, Oxford grabbed her and pointed a .38 caliber revolver at her head.

Mrs. Williams told authorities he threatened to kill her if she called for help. Thomas came on the scene and Mrs. Williams shouted to him that Oxford was going to shoot her.

Suddenly three quick shots rang out and Thomas fell.

Oxford then shot himself in the head.

After a child learns to walk and talk, the next thing he has to learn is to sit down and shut up.

ing of livability to this remarkable house. On 6000 days ago, built in a round corner fireplace, an invaluable added by the English.

Active, colorful guides take you through this spacious and gracious structure. Most striking are the simple hand-carved banquet tables and chairs, dating back to the 16th century, the huge pottery jugs and incense burners, the solid first-story walls, built out to the street, the of coquina, a native quarried shell stone, the foot-thick (lumpy) floors are a mixture of lime, sand and shell.

To feminine visitors, the prize is the upstairs boudoir, a room that is completely round in architectural design. The vanity and furnishings fit into the circular pattern. The ceiling resembles a wagon wheel with spokes. A curved stone balcony looks out over Matanzas Bay and down into the beautiful walled patio where pomegranates, fig, orange and lemon trees grow.

Fantastic Collection

From the Oldest House we circled back to visit the Lighter Museum of Hobbies. Housed in the Hotel, this fantastic 40-room art collection, donated to the city by Otto C. Lightner. It is an experience that exhausts the vocabulary: the attention-arresting collections range from mustache cups to ladies stockings of long ago, from ancient music boxes to handclips, from classic paintings to upright electric pianos which you can play.

Days could be spent in this incredible place, an adventure which kept our boys running from one room to another before working their way back to the collections that appealed most to them. Ladies have a field day examining the display of nightgowns of yesterday, a quilt made by Mrs. Lin-Cole, beaded handbags over the centuries, rare Dresden figurines and what is said to be one of the finest collections of cut glass in the world.

And for good measure there is Roia, a famous lion that was mounted after he died in the London Zoo in 1953. Roia was the war mascot of Sir Winston Churchill, and a symbol of British of their North African victories in World War II.

Climax of our tour of St. Augustine was the Castillo de San Marcos, an impressive fortress on which construction was started in 1672 to protect the route of the Spanish treasure fleets and the city from attack by land or sea. Now a national monument, the impregnable bastion is reached by footbridge, that spans the waterway to an entryway in the 12-foot thick coquina stone walls.

Against the Spanish forays against the Carolinas and Georgia, it was the target of raids by pirates, Indians and Englishmen, culminated by a 50-day siege by British troops in 1702.

Mystery of Bones
 Most exciting thing in the fort is the old powder magazine with its round vaulted ceiling and low door that made even our boys stoop to gain entrance. Briefly used as a prison, it was sealed off when the fort was rebuilt in 1735. One hundred years later when the room was reopened, crumbling human bones were found in the chamber to provide a still-unexplained mystery.

One of the huge stone rooms leading out the courtyard was used from 1875 to 1887 as a prison for the warriors of Geronimo, the famous Indian renegade from Arizona Territory. Today its walls are hanging with maidenhair fern, turning it into a beautiful grotto that belies its grim past.

Nearby are the historic stone gates to St. Augustine, once part of the old town wall, and through which only one car at a time now can pass.

No battles were fought at nearby Fort Matanzas, built on Rattlesnake Island in 1742 to guard the inlet to the Bay. This tiny but photogenic fortified watchtower has been preserved as a national monument. It also is the site of the 1595 massacre of French Huguenots by Spanish forces under Captain-General Mendez, founder of St. Augustine.

Our family was no different from any other visitors to Daytona Beach. The first thing we did was take an experimental drive on the hard-packed silver white sands, famed for speed trials and national championship races for stock and sports cars. Watching motorcycle races beside the surf also is a thrilling experience on this 500-foot wide beach.

On summer evenings the concerts at the Band Shell by the sea are a top drawing card.

The Magic Circle turns west (U. S. 92) to Deland, a lovely residential city on the edge of Florida's lake region. The many-acre campus of Stetson University dominates the town.

North of Deland (U.S. 17) is Ponce de Leon Springs, one of nature's beauty spots which has turned into a pleasure land for swimming, picnicking and boat riding through acres of tropical gardens. Brilliantly colored birds admire their images in the mirror-clear waters that come from the springs emerging from the Jewish state are essentially religious and all to the good. I have recently observed how much the policy of Israel is to break down religious barriers and prejudices in the encouragement, without any bias, of the pilgrimages to holy places, which have been increasing greatly.

In some respects Israel might be regarded as a great achievement in a secular state, but I think its religious significance to the homeland of the Bible is not to be disregarded nor understood.

DOROTHY DIX

Man Can Take Care of Bothersome Boy

By DOROTHY DIX

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Two years ago I met a man who seemed like a nice guy. He told me that he and his wife had agreed to a divorce but after the sudden death of a son, they had postponed the case. Meanwhile, each was to be, in effect, free as the wind. We dated, I grew fond of him and finally agreed to wait for his divorce. I wanted to meet his wife, whom he described as a woman of bad disposition and manners. As time passed, I grew suspicious of this involved explanation and finally made it my business to meet his wife without letting her know of my connection with her husband. I found her a thoroughly charming, gracious woman, utterly unlike the picture he had painted of her. I realized at once how foolish and naive I had been. My good boy was outspoken but calm. Now, more than a year has passed, but he still makes a nuisance of himself. He phones day and night, usually hanging up as soon as I answer. When I had an unlisted phone but in my home, he calls continually at my office. He follows me, obstructs the driveway in front of my home, sends useless things to my home, says things to bother me. My sister, thinking I should go to his wife, my parents recommend that police, my father says hell corner the man and insist that he leave me alone. What should I do? — L.L.

DEAR L.L.: Let your father handle this since he's willing, able and resourceful. The man's antics are cowardly and childish. The sight of a flapping man should promptly squelch them.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Joe and I are both 19, very much in love, and planning to be married this September. Mother and others advise us to wait until Joe is 21. We love each other very, very much and are working toward our wedding and home. We're glad to help. — WYNONA

DEAR WYNONA: While it's true that many young people of 19, and even younger, have achieved happy marriages, the pitfalls are many and they often come unceremoniously for those so young. So many, many letters come to me beginning with the words, "I know we were too young to marry but please help us to salvage the mess." Waiting won't lessen your love. It will help your economic status, your understanding of each other and your proving family relationships. Compromise with your own years' wait. — DOROTHY DIX

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I'm 20 years old and have been going with a girl for 16 months. Recently I met another girl whom I would like to date. Everytime I mention breaking up to the girl I now go with, she cries. I feel so sorry for her that I can't go ahead although I really do want to break up with her. I like her, but not enough for steady dating. — BRUCE

DEAR BRUCE: Woman was endowed with tears for the express purpose of turning them on to melt just such intentions as you have. You must learn to control your emotions. A woman's tears are much too precious to be used as a weapon. If you really love a girl, you will not break up with her. — DOROTHY DIX

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I'm 20 years old and have been going with a girl for 16 months. Recently I met another girl whom I would like to date. Everytime I mention breaking up to the girl I now go with, she cries. I feel so sorry for her that I can't go ahead although I really do want to break up with her. I like her, but not enough for steady dating. — BRUCE

Police Confirm Shot Fired at Blossom

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Little Rock police today confirmed that former School Supt. Virgil T. Blossom reported he was shot at near his home one night during the height of Central High School integration controversy here in the fall of 1957. Blossom was not injured.

The incident had not been made public previously. There was other violence during the crisis, but apparently this was the only instance of gunfire.

The disclosure came as a result of an advance announcement of a book Blossom has written on the Little Rock situation. The announcement said Blossom was shot at on the streets.

Assistant Police Chief R. E. Glasscock said Blossom reported being shot while driving a car. Blossom said he was driving a car when he found a dent near the bottom of the right rear door, apparently made by a 22-caliber bullet. The official did not know the date of the incident.

The Blossom book is scheduled for publication on May 27. Its title is "It Has Happened Here." Blossom now lives in San Antonio, Tex., where he will become school superintendent on July 1.

Would Make a New Church Stand Out

By TOM HENSHAW, AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A church building thinks the Rev. Edward S. Frey has something in common with a newspaper—each is a medium of communication.

The visible evidence of a church and its faith is its church structure, he says. "It stands as a 24-hour witness to faith. What does it say?"

What it says is of particular importance to Pastor Frey, who is executive director of the Department of Church Architecture of the United Lutheran Church in America.

Both Pastor Frey and his associate director, the Rev. John Whetstone, are of the modernistic school of church architecture. "provided its design is honest."

"Until quite recently," says Pastor Frey, "Protestants did not know what they were doing when they built a church. They were content merely to copy the past without knowing."

"But copying the past often turns out a forbidding structure, like something that speaks out of the past, not the present. I might not communicate to the people of today."

Pastor Whetstone defines a good church structure as "one that bears adequate witness to man's relation to God in man's own day."

"The only way to make a church stand out today is to make it unique," says Pastor Whetstone. "Provided of course it still bears adequate witness to man's relation to God."

John Whetstone, Frey and Whetstone endorse the modernistic design of the controversial Air Force Academy Chapel, which has been called on the floor of the U.S. Senate "a deliberate insult to God Almighty."

"An odd shape doesn't bother me unless I see no reason for it," says Pastor Frey. "Some churches may be designed strangely to create an artistic splash but I think the honesty of the Air Force Chapel is unquestionable."

Pastor Whetstone attributes the opposition to the Air Force Academy Chapel and other modernistic churches to the fact that "the church is traditionally the most conservative element in society."

"No matter how radical a person in some things," he says, "he usually has one basic anchor point of conservatism. In most people it's religion."

Big Financier Now Fellow on the Farm

The Lighter Side By FRANK ELEAZER, United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — L. W. Strauss, in a dark blue suit and armed with a briefcase, looked just like the banker and big banker he formerly was. But he painted himself now as more of a cattle farmer with investments worth hardly a million.

He told the Senate Commerce Committee he sold most of his stocks and built all his business connections except for his farm, when he was named chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission in 1953.

That seemed to satisfy the senators that Strauss, a former partner in Kuhn, Loeb and Co., won't suffer any conflict of interest if they confirm his appointment as secretary of commerce.

Strauss, who was named to the post by President Eisenhower last Oct. 24, said somewhat wistfully he hopes the Senate will act soon.

Mentions No Names
 Chairman Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) said the record would show there had been some presidential nominees whose confirmations took longer. He didn't name any.

Strauss noted that there had been others who got through the Senate under Communist influence. He didn't mention any names either, and didn't have in only two days before the Senate had rammed through its confirmation of Christian A. Herter as secretary of state before the ink was real dry on his papers.

Unlike Herter, Strauss isn't a former member of Congress. And in his former post at the AEC, he sometimes tangled with people who were and are members of Congress. Anyway, here he was spending his fourth day as a witness at a hearing that begins in earnest next week.

Roads Under Control
 Magnuson said people would be surprised to know all the government functions that come under the Commerce Department. Take roads, he said. Did Strauss have any plans to cut in the new state of Alaska on the interstate road building program?

Strauss said he didn't. Maggie said Strauss better get on this right away, so when war or the Russians build a tunnel under the Bering Strait, every thing will be set for motorists to roll from Washington straight on to Paris.

Sen. Hugh Scott (R-Pa.) said he'd go with Maggie on this as far as he could. "But I want the senator to know I will strongly oppose construction of a bridge from California to Hawaii," he added. Scott had his tongue in his cheek. Magnuson, who may or may not have been kidding, replied, "We are likely to have that proposal."

Tells Off Finances
 As for Strauss' finances, Magnuson said he wasn't asking unless Strauss wanted to tell Strauss said he did. He said since divesting himself, to take the AEC job, he owns stocks only in hometown banks, government and municipal bonds, cash, and his farm.

Maggie said he wasn't asking how much Strauss was worth, but he said he assumed it was plenty. "I don't owe any money," Strauss replied, "and I'm solvent."

Maggie wondered if Strauss could come back Monday. "I'm at your disposal any time," Mr. Chairman, the ex-banker replied, as patient and pleased as it is religion. They don't like to see it changed in any way. But whether they like it or not, people are going to see a lot of change in church architecture in the next decades.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Bemis of Little Rock were Monday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bemis.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Shipp spent Monday in Texarkana.

Mr. and Mrs. Hansel Herring and Mrs. Lucy Lee Cruise spent Tuesday in Little Rock. They were accompanied by Mrs. Allen Gee Jr. and son Ron, who remained for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Gee.

Suspends Lower Water Rate Order

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Public Service Commission today temporarily suspended a city ordinance which reduced water rates at England.
England's City Council passed the ordinance March 18. Two weeks later, the England Water Co. protested the action to the PSC. The firm said the measure would cut its rates to a point which would eliminate any profit.
"We don't want to go backward," would the twin boys catch in a wave and pitch-pole the craft? Could the boat move at all in the light airs of a drift match?
Not all the answers are in, but the Tiger Cat, in this first race, showed bursts of speed while pointing toward the wind that could rival at power boat.
"Looks like we have a new racing class in the making."

THE STORY Jim Furlong and Clay Dawson, eluded hunters from the Empire ranch who are seeking their way out of the world, are now carrying on a renegade fight against Empire. Dawson has an old score to settle with Empire and Jules, Pardee, the owner of the ranch.

Furlong rode without haste, visually scouting each meadow before crossing it, each ridge before climbing it. The thought was not a new one, but an old one, resumed for the price of survival on enemy patrols had been constant vigilance. He had been careless at Gillum's campfire last night, yet had learned something that was important to him, he could not shoot at white riders the same as he had once shot at red ones.

He had seen no riders, near or far, since leaving Bent Elbow Canyon. Now, as he approached Fern Lindstrom's place, the only fresh tracks were those his gray pony had made last night—slight, deeper than normal, because of the Rules, added weight.
He had taken it for granted that Fern was gone, but now saw her come to the kitchen, stoop and stand here, as if looking or listening for someone. Afternoon's slanting sunlight gave her hair a burnished copper shine, admiring the picture she made, Furlong wondered if she was expecting a visit from Mace Gillum, and felt remotely envious. There had been a time when Grace Kimble had waited for him like that, expectantly receptive. But no more.

Furlong was into the yard when Fern heard him and turned quickly, her hands coming up in a startled, purely feminine gesture. She stood waiting for him, not speaking or moving, but with a wistful, half-smiling expression that was somehow more pleasing than words would have been. Convinced that she had been expecting Gillum, Furlong asked, "Disappointed?"

Fern peered at him, visibly puzzled. "Why should I be?"
"You seemed to be waiting for someone—Mace Gillum, perhaps?"
"I think he'll be coming soon for a supper. Mace's tent was burned last night—food, clothing, everything is gone."

"Because we've seen there?"
"Cleo Veto is, like an Apache, tried to tell him that Mace was not there, but Veto wouldn't listen. They shot Mace's other horse then they took my wagon to carry the wounded man into town."
"Then you had to walk home?"
Furn nodded.
"Anger and remorse clayed at him. 'All that trouble because I stopped by Gillum's tent for a cup of coffee.'"
"No, Jim. Because Empire has been allowed to rule so long. Because men have been afraid to do what you are doing."

"Then she asked, 'Aren't you going to get down?'"

Fish Are Same in Any Language
By AL McCLEANE
Fishing Editor

BULA BEMBA, Belgian Congo (NBA)—In French the official language in these parts, they call them perch.
The fish are really overgrown snappers ranging anywhere from five to 90 pounds. In common with snappers throughout the world these African giants are smart and tough. I'm certain they never saw a popping plug until today, however, because they fell all over themselves trying to grab plastic minnows.

It started early this morning before the sun got its hot grip on the Congo. I trotted the mangrove islands with the postmaster of Bana Point. I didn't know why we were trolling along the brassy banks, but M'sieu LeGrand supplied plugs big enough to catch tuna.

My host had attempted to shuffle our lures in and out of the branches by trolling parallel to them. I moved the boat about 10 yards from the bank and cast close to the branches with a popper. It's the way we fish for tarpon and snook at home.

The water churned as the fish turned back into the mangroves. Even though I was using fairly heavy tackle there was no holding these babies. M'sieu LeGrand said the first one was about a 40-pounder. I set my drag lighter and made another cast. Luckily I held the second snapper which turned out to be a 20-pounder. I don't know how many fish we caught or lost, but there was never a dull moment.

We passed a fishing village in the mangrove jungle and the natives gathered along the shore to watch.
I don't know what they thought of the two crazy Yankees flailing the water under a noon-day sun, but the postmaster assured me that we were setting something of a record for the Bas-Congo.

Rock 'n Roll Not a Part of Music Meet
By NORMAN BELL
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Rock 'n' Roll was being treated like a condemned killer at the biennial convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs today.
It's early end was freely predicted, "and a good thing, too," declared Mrs. Blant Buford of Dallas, Tex., chairman of the group's publicity department.
She and such a noted music authority as Sigmond Spaeth, writer and lecturer, blamed it for killing television's "Hit Parade" program, which they said was ending soon.

Dr. Vera Wardner Douglas of Beirut, Wis., president of the federation, declared, "It was nothing but a beat anyway, and it is just beating itself out."
Their comment followed and supported a report in the convention by Ada Holdings Miller of Providence, R.I., chairman of the group's American music section, that Rock 'n' Roll was cooking and rolling itself out of popularity.
This conclusion was based on reports from member clubs, half of which are composed of young people, and on popular numbers in the organization's February

Lloyd Bridges Does Well Wet or on Stage

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Fannie Brice once said of Esther Williams: "We, she's a star; dry, she ain't." The same cannot be applied to Lloyd Bridges.

He was a noted actor in his own right before going under the brim in the successful TV series, "Sea Hunt." Since strapping on his aqua-lung, his career has boomed. "The series has certainly brought me more notice than anything I have ever done before as an actor," he remarked. "It has also brought me more money than anything else in my career."

"Artistic satisfaction? No, that is lacking. But fortunately, I am able to get it by doing other things when I'm not doing 'Sea Hunt.'"
The other things are TV dramas, films and plays, which make more use of his acting talents than the water-soaked TV show.

This summer he is touring in the big musical tent as Sky Master on "Guys and Dolls."
Can he sing? "I don't know," he hasn't really tried.
Last year, he did "The Goddess" in his hiatus from "Sea Hunt." So far, he hasn't found a satisfactory script for a 1959 movie.

"The nice part about having a series is that you don't have to take just anything that comes along. It appears that he will enjoy such independence for some time. 'Sea Hunt' is going into the last part of its second year of films."

"Parade of American Music." They were largely folk music and musical show bits.
Spaeth said reports from music publishers and recording companies also showed Rock 'n' Roll was coming to an end.

"It was nothing but a jungle beat," he said, speaking of it in the past tense. "Nothing but a reflection of a spirit of our times, but even the kids are dropping it."

Decapitation Slayer Gets Life Sentence

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Hosea Gardner was convicted of first degree murder yesterday for the decapitation slaying of his former wife.

A Pulaski Circuit Jury fixed a sentence of life imprisonment for the 32-year-old Negro, who was accused of killing Evelyn Kirby, 25, last Sept. 26.

Gardner said he acted in self defense. Witnesses said he broke into the Kirby woman's home, drove away a male visitor and then ran after the woman with a butcher knife.

Gardner's attorneys said the conviction would be appealed.

Found Whole Pack Inside a Car

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Traffic officer Thomas J. Needham spotted four pairs of feet dangling from the trunk of a small foreign car Thursday.

He stopped the car for a more careful count. He found four Cub Scouts in the trunk, nine more in the car, plus their den mother, Mrs. Carl Bunnell, the driver. A total of 14.

"I didn't have the heart to issue a citation," said the understanding Needham. He called the station, which sent a squad car around to carry some of the surplus home.

and the producers foresee a five or six-year run. The show has been a smashing success in syndication, yet the networks passed it up.

"I guess they were all wrapped up in Westerns," Bridges observed.

The public has shown it is interested in adventure under the water as well as on the plains. The question is: How can they keep thinking up new plots?

Except The LORD Build The HOUSE

They Labor In Vain That Build It

MONOTONY

All the rivers run into the sea; yet the sea is not full; unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither they return again... sang the poet about the monotony of life. How much alike are our days, weeks and months! Even the job, the office force is the same. But Brother, the difference is not in the river, nor the job, nor the office force. It is in the quality of personality we offer. No matter how tame the world may be. Clear distinction between good and evil, poise and good judgment, a refusal to depend upon external things, these will give satisfaction... relieve monotony. We are masters of our fate. Then let the rivers run to the sea. We will love and labor and build our house.
